

Serving Beyond the Badge: Accessibility Ramp for the Wells Family

June 9, 2026

The mission of supporting the Virginia State Police family extends far beyond the workplace, and that commitment was once again put into action. Virginia State Police Association Executive Director Bill Carrico, VSPA President Matt McCrory, Sandra Winfree and David Ostwinkle came together to deliver and install a wheelchair access ramp for Courtney Wells, VSP Photographer, and her family. The project was made possible through the generosity of those who support the Emergency Relief Fund's efforts and reflects the unwavering commitment to care for members of the Virginia State Police family during times of need.

The team spent the day transporting the ramp, preparing the site, assembling the structure and ensuring it was safely installed so Courtney's husband could more easily enter and leave their home. Courtney expressed her heartfelt appreciation for the kindness and generosity shown by everyone involved. She shared that she is incredibly thankful for the gift and looks forward to being able to safely move her husband in and out of their home without the challenges they previously faced.

Acts like these demonstrate what makes the Virginia State Police family so special. Whether responding to emergencies, advocating for Troopers, or lending a helping hand to fellow members in need, the spirit of service continues thanks to the Support Virginia Troopers Foundation and the VSPA. The Foundation and Association are proud to stand beside law enforcement families—not only in times of crisis, but in the everyday moments where compassion can make a lasting difference. Thank you to everyone whose generosity makes projects like this possible. Your support truly changes lives.
